TASK 3

So the act of pumping gas is pretty simple. But you are going to have to know what the driver needs, so you need to take your lead from them. Here are some things you need to be ready for:

- What grade of fuel does this vehicle need?
- How much? Are we filling the tank or is there a dollar amount that is needed?
- Do you want a receipt?
- Do you want a car wash? (Many pumps across America try to surprise you with that question and get you to purchase a car wash. Be ready for it.)
- Swipe that card and get it safely back to the driver's hand. You may also have to input your zip code. (The drivers zip code for the card that is, so be ready for that.)
- Be ready to shut the nozzle off. Most of the time they automatically shut off. But I have used some that simply did not work or the mechanism would jam. Just be ready and don't assume that they all work seamlessly.
- Put the nozzle back on the cradle and close the filler hatch on the car. Obvious step? People still drive off with the nozzle still in the car as crazy as it sounds.
